

THE WEATHER TODAY, C2

8 a.m. 73°
Noon 81°
4 p.m. 77°
8 p.m. 72°

Archery gold medals nothing new for Horwath. Sports, B1

Recycled and reused, El Santiago lives on. Local News, C1

A Daily Sun Special Report

Where the Jobs Are

How the nation's seniors are driving the explosive demand for quality health care

FASTEST GROWING OCCUPATIONS

Jobs in the health care industry lead the list of the fastest-growing occupations in America, according to projections by the U.S. Department of Labor and U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

INDUSTRIAL-ORGANIZATIONAL PSYCHOLOGISTS

53.4%
Growth by 2022
Median annual wage: $83,580
Jobs in 2012: 1,600
Jobs in 2022: 2,500
Typical Education: Master's degree

PERSONAL CARE AIDES

48.8%
Growth by 2022
Median annual wage: $19,910
Jobs in 2012: 1,200,000
Jobs in 2022: 1,800,000
Typical Education: Less than high school

HOME HEALTH AIDES

48.5%
Growth by 2022
Median annual wage: $20,820
Jobs in 2012: 875,000
Jobs in 2022: 1,300,000
Typical Education: Less than high school

DIAGNOSTIC MEDICAL STENOGRAPHERS

46%
Growth by 2022
Median annual wage: $65,860
Jobs in 2012: 59,000
Jobs in 2022: 86,000
Typical Education: Associate's degree

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY ASSISTANTS

42.6%
Growth by 2022
Median annual wage: $53,240
Jobs in 2012: 30,000
Jobs in 2022: 43,000
Typical Education: Associate's degree

GENETIC COUNSELORS

41.2%
Growth by 2022
Median annual wage: $56,800
Jobs in 2012: 2,100
Jobs in 2022: 3,000
Typical Education: Master's degree

The nation's biggest employment demand is in health care ...

By EDDY DURYEA
Daily Sun Senior Writer

Helga Melinsky wants to stay at home, but she's not a homebody. She wants independence. Melinsky, of the Village of Virginia Trace, does tai chi, writes children's books and meditates. She strives to maintain her lifestyle and age in place, a sentiment she shares with the growing number of active seniors who are helping to shape the way providers approach health care.

And projected job growth mirrors that sentiment. Fourteen of the top 20 fastest-growing occupations are health-related, and seven of those 14 are specifically designed to keep seniors in their home, Bureau of Labor Statistics 2012-2022 occupational job growth projections suggest. Personal care aides and home health aides are projected to have the most growth, both with about a 49 percent increase in employment, just behind the fastest-growing profession:

Please See HEALTH JOBS, A8

... And The Villages Health is showing students how to do it well.

By LARRY D. CROOM
Daily Sun Ombudsman

Villages Health medical providers are on a mission to show medical students what a career in primary care looks like when it's done the right way. "As people get older, I think the biggest need will be primary care, which is what The Villages Health is all about," said Dr. Saul Rosenblum, medical director of the Santa Barbara Care Center. "Patients have a burning desire to have a contact person - a coach in the health-care industry," he added. "They need to have someone they can trust to say, 'Am I doing the right thing or am I not doing the right thing?'" So far, five University of South Florida medical students have had the opportunity to work and learn alongside Villages Health physicians during their third-year rotations. And with more on the way, Dr. Elliot Sussman, chair of The Villages Health, said he is confident those students quickly will see the benefits

Please See HEALTH CARE, A8

Inside: New doctors seek larger group practices, A4 • Q&A: Neil Manimala, A6 • TVHS Health Sciences Academy preps students, A7

TOP OF THE NEWS

SPIETH SETS ANOTHER SCORING RECORD, STAYS ATOP BIG-NAME LEADERBOARD AT MASTERS

Jordan Spieth finally slipped up, making an ugly double bogey at the 17th hole Saturday. It wasn't enough to keep him from setting another Masters scoring record. With a brilliant up-and-down at the final hole, Spieth shot a 2-under 70 that gave him the lowest 54-hole score in tournament history and sent him to the final round with a four-stroke lead. Spieth's total over three mostly brilliant days at Augusta National was 16-under 200, breaking the mark of 201 set by Raymond Floyd in 1976 and matched by Tiger Woods in 1997. But Spieth has some big names on his heels, including Justin Rose, Phil Mickelson, Rory McIlroy and Tiger Woods, and Spieth's rough finish gave a glimmer of hope for those who'll be chasing him today.

Sports, B1

Advice	D12
Classifieds	F1
Lottery	A4
Movie Listings	D3
Obituaries	C4
Puzzles	D8
Television	D10
Travel & Leisure	E1

We support our men and women in uniform.

